Recipes For Life
Appendix 1.2
Trello Details

Trello is a piece of software which represents a task board which is used to manage the requirements. The task board is called Honours and is found here at this link:

https://trello.com/b/5BYRgZ4k/honours

The Honours board has four sections. Section 1 is the product backlog these are the requirements still to be done. These requirements are ordered in priority. Section 2, 3 and 4 represent the 3 iterations in the project and contain the requirements that are in progress or complete during these iterations. The requirements in these sections are in order of when they were done (first requirement done is at the top and last requirement done is at the bottom). If the requirement is marked red it means to do, yellow means in progress and green means done. Below is an image showing the task board.
